

3D graphics provide much more control over than 2D graphics. By moving lights to the desired locations, the computer automatically figures out how the light would hit the objects, giving you an opportunity to create very dramatic lighting without having to re-do your entire image each time you change it.